Exploring Creation with General Science is an engaging hands-on class that will equip students with general science knowledge as they prepare for high school level classes. Mrs. Seligson is a conversational writer, who makes this curriculum easy and fun to read. The text covers the foundational studies of general science including astronomy, physics, biology, marine science, environmental science, creation, and more. This is a hands-on, team building class where students will have the opportunity to conduct several labs and experiments, work with a team, and participate in fun and engaging review games to enhance their knowledge. Students will also learn to complete lab reports along with presentation skills. Parents will be encouraged to have their student follow the reading assignments on the syllabus that will be provided. Students will be given in class vocabulary quizzes after each chapter.
